Global Learning explores the interconnections between people and places, the acquisition of in-depth knowledge and understanding of international issues, an appreciation of and ability to learn and work with people from different cultural backgrounds.

It is learning that acknowledges and accepts similarities and differences of other people’s cultures and perspectives.

Description: The Institute for African Development (IAD) internship programs supports Cornell’s mission “to promote a culture of broad inquiry throughout and beyond the Cornell community.” Internship placements by IAD program provide students with academically related and practical fieldwork experience. Students with an interest in African development who would like to engage in personalized learning not available in the traditional classroom setting are welcome to apply.

IAD views the 8-week internship program as an integral part of a student’s education, offering experiential learning that provide students with opportunities to apply knowledge and skills learned in the classroom in a real world context.
